Award-winning designer Marlaina Teich might best be described as the Midas of the design world, because one peek at her portfolio and you'll swear that everything she touches turns to eye-catching gold.

As a high-end designer for some of Long Island's most beautiful properties, Marlaina Teich has spent the last two decades helping her clients live at the intersection of where beauty meets comfort.

"My clients have real lives to live," she says. "Everything my team and I create is designed with this in mind."

Her hands-on, immersive approach means that she's always available to her clients, and she works alongside contractors and subcontractors to develop solutions before her clients even have to face a single problem.

Those solutions have captured the attention of primetime and cable television networks like NBC, FOX, and The CW, and her signature white-glove experience is known for delivering a sophisticated aesthetic that perfectly reflects each client.

"I'm always inspired by fashion, texture, color, and the different cultures around the world," she says. "But you'll also find me completely enamored by the everyday: The Brooklyn Bridge, the colors in the sky, the tiniest details hidden in nature. If it works in the natural world, then you know it will be gorgeous in design. The trick is just opening your eyes and seeing the beauty that's right in front of you."
